CHAPTER XXVIII. 'Doctor,' said Mr. Carden, 'you are an confide the truth to you."

'You may save yourself the trouble.
I have watched the whole progress of this amour up to the moment when you gave them the advantage of your paternal wisdom, and made them both 'It is very unreasonable of them, to

'It is very unreasonable of them, to be misserable.'
'Oh, lovers parted could never yet make themselves happy with reason.'
'But why do you say parted? 'All I said was 'no engagement till you can make a soltement; and don't compromise her in the meanwhile.' I did not mean to interdict occasional visits.'
'Then why not say so? That is so like people. 'You made your unfavorable stipulation plain enough; but the little bit of comfort, you left that in doubt. This comes of not putting yourself in his place. I have had a

"Then write to him and say so.'

'No, no; you take an opportunity to let him know he has really overrated my severity, and that I trust to his honor, and do not object to a visit—

'It is a commission I will undertake

'It is a commission I will undertake with pleasure.'
'And do you really think that will do her bodily health any good?'
Before Doctor Amboyne could reply, the plano was suddenly louched in the next room, and a sweet voice began to sing a cheerful meledy. 'Hush!' said Doctor Amboyne. 'Surely! know that tune. 'Yes, I have heard the other whistle it.'

whistie it."

'She has not sung for ever so long,' remarked Mr. Carden.

'And I think I can tell! you why she is singing now: look at this picture of Hope; I just told her I had a male patient silloted with her complaint, and the quick-witted creature asked me discouly if I thought this picture would do him any good. I said yos, and I'd take it to him.'

'Come, doctor, that couldn't make is her since.'

do him any good. I said yes, and I'd take it to him.'

'Come, doctor, that couldn't make her sing.'

'Why not? Heart can speak to heart, even by a flower, or a picture. The separation was complete; sending this symbol has broken it a little, and so she is singing. This is a lesson for us rader and less subtie spirits. Now mind; thwarted love seldom kills a busy man; but it often kills an idle woman, and your daughter is an idle woman, or you will dent my iron pot, and break your China vase to atoms.'

Having administered this warning, Dr. Amboyne went straight from Woodbine Villa to Little's factory; but Little was still in London; he had gone there to take out patents. Bayne promised to sond the Doctor a line immediately on his return. Nevertheless a fortnight elapsed, and then Dr. Amboyne received a short mysterious line to tell him Mr. Little had come home, and would be all the better of a visit, On receipt of this the Doctor went at once to the works, and found young Little lying on his carpenter's bench in a sort of gloomy spathy. 'Hallo' said the Doctor in his cheerful way; 'why, what's the matter now?'

'I'm fairly crushed,' groaned the inventor.

'And what has crushed you?'

'No, no: I haven't the heart to go through the hisk an inventor was the onemy of the human race. Yee, I will tell'you; the sight of you has revived me a bit; it always does. Well, then, you know I am driven to invention ow; it is my only chance; and ever since Mr. Gorden out to the best way of saw grinding by machinery. The circular saws beat me for awbile, but I mastered them; ase, there's the model.' I'm going to burn it this wery afternoon, Well, a month ago, I took the other model and bouge the decription in some government office, and no be quiet about it. And, all this time, mind you, no disposition to soften all this official peculation by civility; no missiving that the next wave of civilization may aweep all these Go-betweens and leeches out of the path of progress; and the deputation has a second the deputation has a second the deputation betweens all ion may sweep all these Go-betweens and leedhea out of the path of progress; mo, the deputy-vice-tio-betweens all scowled, as well as swindled; they broke my heart so, often I sat down in their ante-chambers; and the scalding tears ran down my cheeks, at being pillaged of my time, as well as my money, and treated like a criminalfor what? For being, in my small way, a national benefactor.

'Ay,' said the Doctor, 'you had committed the crime of Brains; and the worse crime of declining to be starved in return for them. I don't rebel against the fees so much; their only fault is that they are too heavy, since the monopolylithey profess to cure is short-lived, and yet not very secure; the Lord Chancellor, as a ludge, has often to upset the patent which he has sold in another character. By that system of go-betweens, and deputy-go-betweens, and of nobody doing his own business in matters of state, it really upon the national intellect. It is a disease; so let us name it. We doctors are great at naming diseases; greater than at curing them.

Let us call it Vicania,

This English malaria.

Of this viceria, the lors of time and money you have suffered is only one of the truits, I think,

'All I know they made my life hell for more than a month; and if ever I have the fortune to invent anything more, I'll keep it to myself. I'll hide it, like any other crime. But no; I never will invent another thing; never, 'Stuff! Methinks I hear a duck abjure natation. You can't help inventing.'

'I will help it. What, do you thin! I will help it. What, do you think I'll be such an sess as to have Brains in a country where Brains are a crime. Doctor, I'm in deepair.'
"Then it is time to cast your eyes over this little picture.'
The inventor turned the little picture listlessly about. 'Il's a woman, with an anchor. It's a figure of Hope.'
"Beaulfully painted, is it not?"
"The tinto are well laid on; but, if you'll excuse me, it is rather flat.' He laid the picture down and turned away

The tinth are went and turned away you'll excuse me, it is rather flat.' He laid the ploture down and turned away from it. 'Ah, Hope, my lass, you've come to the wrong shop.' 'Not she. She was painted expressly for you, and by a very beautiful girl,' 'Oh, Doctor, not by —' 'Yes; she sends it to you.' 'Ah!' And he caught Hope up, and began to devour her with kisses, and his eyes sparkled finely, 'I have some good news, too, for you. Mr. Carden tells me he never intended to separate you entirely from his Mr. Carden tells me he never intended to separate you entirely from his daughter. It you can be moderate, discreet, old before your time, etc., and come only once a week, and not compromise her publicly, you will be as welcome as ever.'

"That is good news, indeed.' I'll go there this very day; and I'll patent the circular saw."

"Thre's a non sequelur for you!"
"Nothing of the kind, sir. Why, even the Queen's Go-betweens will never daunt me, now. I can go and drink love and courage direct from her eyes; nothing can chill nor discourage me now. I'll light my forge again, and go to work, and make a few sets of carring tools, and that will pay the Go-betweens for patenting my circular sawagrinder. But first I'll put on my cost and go to heaves.

I said yes, and I'd to him.' 'Had you not better postpone that till the end of your brilliant career as an inventor and a lover ?' 'No; I thirst for heaven, and I'll drink it.' So he made his tolles, thanked and blessed the good doctor, and off to Woodbine Villa. Grace Oarden saw him coming, and opened the door to him herself, red as scarlet, and her eyes ewimming. She scarcely made an effort to contain herself this time, and when she got him into the drawing-room all to herself, as complete, sending this shoulder; and it cost him only a gain or two, I can tell you; and they sat should in hand, and were never tired of gazing at each other; and their trouble was as though it had never been. Love brightened the present, the future, and went he not, and were heave tired of a way the not, and the present, the future, and went he not, and were never tired of any tor the future, and aven the national their trouble was as thongh it had never been. He did not tell Grace one word of what he had suffered from Vicaris—I thankthee, Doctor for tesching me that word—it had lost all interest to him. Love and happiness had annihilated the true character—like the afternoon sun gilding a far-off pigsty. He did mention the subject, however, but it was in these terms: 'And, dearet, I'm hard at work inventing, and I patent all my inventious; so I hope to satisfy your father before two years.' And Grace said, 'Yes; but don't overwork your poor brain, and worry yourself. I am yours in heart, and that is something, I hope. I know it is to me! I wouldn't change with any wife in Christendon. I have been affleted for nora two years with Dysnepsis; two-thirks of the time I womited from one to three times a day. I had given up the litea of ever getting well, and indeed my friends getting well specially and indeed my friends getting well sgain. Added to this, is infered with the Scrofish very much, since last September one sate of my neek was one entire sore, composed of some seven running sores. The use of one bottle has much improved me, My stomach is relieved and my neck liss improved heyond my most sanguine expectations. I feel much encouraged, and think by the case of one or two bottles more, tshall be relieved entirely. You will please send done the sale.

Yours, respectfully.

DEAR DOOTOR:—You know what was my condition when I called upon you. I was sores all over, literally covered with many black scales, and so pained in my joints at night, that sleep or rest was utterly impossible. My constitution seemed entirely broken down, and I was amost in despair of ever being cured, having tiele many physicians, and used numerous preparations purporting to be remedies, without the least sign of success. But I am now happy to say, that after using those five bottles of your Harsaparilia and Dandellon, and only two boxes of the Pills, I became perfectly restored, have returned to my post on the boat, and feel at this time as stort as ever I did in my life. Please accept my thanks, and believe me ever yours.
